According to J. W. Balmer, superintendent and special distributing agent on the Lac du Flambeau reservation, the fair this year will be the best ever presented by the Indians. HARD TO BELIEVE
BUT MAYBE TRUE

Ever since the day that Jonah sprung that big one about being transported through the drink in the bread pit of a whale, fish stories have been as common as break-fast food skirts in Hawaii. But it is left to Flint Stone, Lenn Markham and James McRae to produce something entirely new in the line of fish stories. If the late lamented Munchausen could have heard this tale it is dollars to marbles that he would have resigned his honors to the three young gentlemen, and steered for the tall and uncut.

While trolling in Shepard Lake Sunday Messrs. Stone, Markham and McRae, claim positively that a muskallonge, weight about 13 pounds, actually did a triple somersault from the bosom of the placid waters into their boat. After taking the hook the fish dived under the boat, and then coming up on the other side, gave one tremendous flop and landed under the seat occupied by Mr. Stone.

The writer has known Messrs. Stone, Markham and McRae ever since the Wisconsin river was built through Rhineland and he has never yet found them to be anything but truthful. Therefore it would be doing them an injustice to dispute their word at this time. However, it would be just as well for them never to relate this story in a strange place unless sure of police protection.

CITY SCHOOLS
OPEN SEPT. 10

The city schools will open Monday, September 10 at the usual time. If those who have rooms for teachers will notify Mrs. W. P. Colburn at 4 North Baird Avenue by phone or card, their names will be sent to the teachers early next week.

There have been several changes in the laws with reference to the hiring of minors. Hereafter, permits must be secured by all minors from fourteen to seventeen years old.

Superintendent Colburn will be in the office at the high school every forenoon next week beginning with Tuesday to meet parents and pupils for the purpose of arranging program of studies.

WAS SEEKING ANGELS

William Malone, who a short time ago was discharged from the Northern Asylum, will probably be returned to that institution. Malone was taken into custody Tuesday night by Officer Claude Shepard while roaming about the street in quest of two angels. He is in the county jail.

MAIL SERVICE
AT WACO, TEXAS"Our Boys" At Camp MacArthur Get Five Deliveries
Daily

The soldier boys at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., will have a prompt mail delivery according to a Waco newspaper.

Five deliveries a day will be made to the camp from the Waco postoffice.

At present the camp postoffice is not completed and so all mail is being sent from the Waco postoffice to the camp in trucks, the mail being delivered to the regiments to which addressed.

In a short time there will be a postoffice at Camp MacArthur that will be almost as large as that in Waco. At least the camp postoffice will be equipped to handle almost as much mail as comes to the city proper.

Ten additional men will be employed by Postmaster C. B. McCollum. He states that these ten men will be taken from the head of the civil service list and then employed at Camp MacArthur as postal employees.

Letters and other mail matter to be sent to soldiers at the camp should be addressed in care of Camp MacArthur, Texas.

The proper form of address is as follows:

Private John Doe,
Co. A, 1st Wis. Inf.,
Camp MacArthur, Texas.

The new postoffice at the camp will be 20 by 125 feet in dimension. It will be equipped to handle mail for 35,000 troops, and money order service, special delivery, etc., will be handled from the Camp MacArthur postoffice just the same as at the Waco postoffice. The new postoffice building will be just south of the Primm home on the Bosqueville road.

When the camp office is in operation all mail will be delivered direct to the reservation. The mail orderlies of the various regiments will call at the mail office when the call is blown by the trumpet on guard. They will take the mail to the various units, where such mail is then delivered by the first sergeant of each company.

BROODS ON WAR;
TAKES OWN LIFEOtto Forsphaul Of Enterprise
Ends Troubles Via Rope

Route

Constant brooding over the war is believed to have been the cause of the suicide by hanging of Otto Forsphaul, an old German settler, residing near Enterprise. Forsphaul's body was discovered Sunday afternoon by William Webster, a prominent resident of Enterprise, who entered the man's home for a friendly call. The ghastly corpse swung at the end of a rope which hung from a rafter. From the condition of the remains Forsphaul had probably been dead about two days. He had not been seen alive since Friday morning.

In taking his life Forsphaul formed a slip knot about his neck and jumping off a bench slowly strangled to death.

Forsphaul was about sixty years old and came from Germany to Enterprise a number of years ago. He was unmarried and lived alone.

Of late the war had been a source of much worry to him and friends expressed the opinion that he had not been rational for some time past. He owned a farm reputed to be worth in the neighborhood of $2,000.

Coroner J. J. Nick went to Enterprise soon after the finding of Forsphaul's body, but after investigating the case considered an inquest an unnecessary expense to the county. He brought the remains to this city.

The body will be shipped to Winnepeg, Wis., where relatives reside and the funeral will be held in that village Friday.

CLEVER BREAD EXHIBIT

"This is the stuff that will win the war"--this is the slogan on a card which directs attention to a bread display in the window of Kirk's bakery. The display consists of bread loaves of various kinds and sizes, together with miniature sacks of flour and stacks of genuine Oneida county wheat. Mrs. D. Kirk deserves the credit for arranging this clever exhibit.

BOOST THE COUNTY FAIR

(By E. L. Luther, Supervisor County Exhibits, Wisconsin State Fair)

Some people count their duty done by the county fair when they pay their admission fee, see the races, and buy some pop corn.

Many, even most, farmers count their duty done when they visit the county fair, look over the few agricultural exhibits there and remark disparagingly of the management or that they have just as good stuff at home.

Others count their boosting done if they get out and arouse people to attend.

But the county fair had its inception in the notion of an exhibit of the agricultural products of the county. Unless this idea is fully maintained the people of the county and the state have little reason to tax themselves for fair appropriations.

The big boost for the county fair, should therefore, be the getting out of a large number of exhibits in all classes of the premium list. People who are out drumming up the attendance should also urge the farmers to exhibit.

Farmers should not go to the fair empty-handed. The preparation of exhibits will lead to the production of a little better quality of farm goods. Almost invariably the best exhibits are shown by the most careful and thoughtful farmers.

If your county fair has been a sleepy place and unattractive, if the attendance has been decreasing and the gate receipts falling off, boost the number of exhibits of farm crops at the fair and the old time interest will return.

Don't forget that if your premium list is arranged properly there will be an added worth in the present day fair over the fair of other days in that the agricultural production of a county will be organized and farmers' markets improved.

BOOSTERS ENJOY
FAIR AT CASSIANOneida Fair Junketers Have Big Time-In Western Part Of County

Rhinelanders people who attended the Community Fair in Cassian Wednesday, are loud in their praise of the show and of the warm hospitality of Cassianites. The fair was all that the advertisements announced and a little bit more. There were excellent exhibits of agricultural products, domestic articles and fancy work. The program consisted of speeches by Mr. Kraege of Fort Atkinson, Judge C. E. Smith Jr., and W. D. Juday, agricultural representative of Oneida county. Sports and contests of various kinds furnished plenty of whole some entertainment for the crowd.

After the awarding of prizes the exhibits were auctioned off. E. A. Forbes acting as auctioneer. This was a part of the program not advertised and was the source of no little amusement. Some of the articles offered for sale brought sky high prices. Mr. Forbes succeeded in hooking about everyone but S. B. Gary. Sam, it is said, hid behind a tree and escaped.

The fair came to a close in the evening with a largely attended dance for which music was furnished by the Crawford orchestra of this city. Royal Neighbors of Cassian, who staged the fair, were so elated over the success of the undertaking that they have decided to make it an annual occasion.

The trip to Cassian was in the nature of an advertising junket for the Oneida County Fair. So thoroughly did the boosters do their work, that it is expected nearly everyone from the western part of the county, will be here for the big show next week. Ten automobiles, loaded to capacity, made the trip. The band accompanied the party and furnished inspiring music all along the route, finishing up with a concert at Cassian.

On the whole the jaunt was one of good fellowship and will not only result in swelling the attendance at the county fair, but will serve to cement a firmer business and social relation between Rhinelanders citizens and the folks in the western part of the county.

TROOPS IN WACO
ARE KEPT BUSYSoldier Boys Are Taking Up With Hard Work With "Lots Of Pep"

Waco, Texas, Aug. 21.--Whether Wisconsin former guardsmen go to France soon or not until next year, no time is being wasted in getting them ready to face the "boches."

Work is the only slogan officers seem to care about according to Badger boys who have just settled down to "business" after their transfer from Camp Douglas. Practically every detail of the camp is complete and the boys are taking up the hard work with "lots of pep" as the junior officers describe it.

Drill will be the big thing temporarily, it was announced. Shortly the boys will be getting actual trench work and war maneuvers. They will learn how to "go over the top" like Pershing's men who are already on the battle front.

The camp here is one of the best in the mid-west, situated upon ideal training ground and with excellent sanitary conditions. The Wisconsin men have no idea how soon they will be in France, but it can be none too soon for most of them.

COMMITTEE HERE
ON OCTOBER 10

Senator W. T. Stevens has been notified that the state trunk line committee will be in Rhineland on its investigation trip Oct. 10.

This is a committee from the legislature appointed by Governor Philipp to settle the dispute on state trunk lines. Those who comprise the committee are Senator Jennings Milwaukee; Senator Clark, La Crosse; Assemblyman Woodard, Chippewa; Assemblyman Peterson, Racine; Assemblyman Chapple Ash land.

TO ATTEND SHEEP MEET
W. D. Juday, county agricultural agent, and E. O. Barstow, secretary of the Rhinelanders Advancement Association, are arranging to attend the national convention of sheep men in Chicago, September 11 and 12.

TO ORGANIZE NEW
GUARD COMPANYThose Who Wish To Enlist
Are Requested To See
E. O. Brown

Adjutant General Holway has authorized E. O. Brown to at once take steps toward the organization of a national guard company in this city. It is urged that the membership of this company be largely comprised of young men who have registered for the draft. Those who join this company will not be exempted from the draft. But they will have the advantage of the military training and be in line for non-commissioned officers, and may in time receive commissions. It is said that many of the future commissioned officers will be selected from the "non-coms" of the new national army.

Those who desire to join this company are requested to immediately see E. O. Brown.

Applicants will be given free physical examinations by Dr. T. B. McIntosh. Enlistments are only for the length of the war.

REV. BEAUDETTE
IN AUTO WRECK

When his Buick roadster struck a telephone post along the side of the Three Lakes road, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. W. A. Beaudette pastor of St. Mary's church, experienced a narrow escape from serious injury.

Father Beaudette was returning from Three Lakes. About four miles from this city the main leaf of the left front spring of his car broke, throwing the left front axle back and turning the machine abruptly to the left of the road, directly against the telephone pole. Father Beaudette was catapulted out of the car and landed some fifteen feet ahead in a trench of mud and water. Except for a scratch on the head and small bruises he was not hurt.

Father Beaudette says the spring leaf in question had been welded in the afternoon prior to the trip. He adds that the moral derived from his experience is--Don't trust to welded springs; get a new one or stay home.

NEW COMPANY FOR STATE DUTY ONLY

E. O. Brown stated to the New North Wednesday night that he is under the impression that the new guard company, about to be formed in Rhineland, will be for duty within the state only and will not be subject to federal service. However, Mr. Brown said he is not positive on this point and had written Adjutant General Holway for correct information.

There is reason to believe that the new company will attain a large membership within a reasonable period of time. Mr. Brown anticipates no difficulty in obtaining enlistments.

LEARNING TO FLY

Truman Schleismann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Schleismann of this city, is now with the reserve officers at the aviators' training camp at Fort Niagara. He expects to be a full fledged bird man within three months.

Out of 30,000 applicants Truman was one of 1300 selected for training. He has just completed a service of eight years in the United States navy.

SELLS MORE LANDS

C. Eby has sold 200 acres of his holdings in the town of Minocqua to Francis A. Becker of Chicago. Mr. Becker will move on the land at once and erect buildings, and will clear as fast as possible. Soon as he is settled he will have other settlers come to the same neighborhood. Mr. Becker paid cash for the land and has plenty of money for improvements. He is the kind of settler Oneida county needs.

EXAMINATION FOR GUARD

On September 8, a civil service examination for guard at the state reformatory in Green Bay and state prison in Waupun, will be held in Rhineland. Those who desire to take the examination should apply to the Wisconsin Civil Service Commission, Madison.

THE WOMEN OF THE NATION

The women of the nation are responding to the call!
Mothers, sweethearts, wives and daughters, see them flocking one and all!
For their fathers, sons and husbands now are going forth to fight,
And the women of the nation rise to aid them with their might.

The women of the nation are united for the flag;
Patriotic, patient, noble. Women never boast or brag.
But when voice of duty calls them, that our liberty may live,
Our brave women give the nation everything they have to give.

The women of the nation join our bold defense array,
Broken hearts and tears are hidden as their loved ones march away.

Though the crush and shock of battle rob our heroes of their lives,
The bravest are the silentest—the mothers, sweethearts, wives.

The women of the nation meet their duty face to face;
Not in skirmish line or trenches—in a more important place, Where they nurse the nation's wounded, or breathe forth the nation's prayer.

The women of the nation, God bless them, will be there.

BIG INCREASE IN CAR EFFICIENCY

R. H. Aishton, President of the Chicago & Northwestern, and Chairman of the Central Department subcommittee of the Railroads' War Board, recently made the following statement:

"The statistics of railway operation during the months of May and June—the latest months for which they are available—show a remarkable improvement in the efficiency of the use of freight cars. The figures for June show that on twenty nine of the leading railways, having a mileage of 125,500 miles—about half the total freight car in the country—the average freight car in June, 1917, handled 22 per cent more ton miles of freight than in June, 1916.

"If statistics for all the railways of the country are found to be equally good when they are available—and there is every reason for anticipating that they will be—they will disclose the greatest increase in freight car efficiency ever secured within a single year.

"The improvement is directly attributable to the vigorous efforts the railways have been making to so increase the efficiency of all their facilities as to enable them to handle all of the rapidly and greatly increasing traffic of the country.

The arrangement of the railways to operate as a single system was made early in April. There are available statistics of freight-car performance in April of railways having a total mileage of 228,000 miles, and they show an increase of ton miles handled per freight car over April, 1916, of 13 per cent. Statistics for May for railways having 173,000 miles of line show an increase of 14 per cent in ton miles handled per freight car.

"The lines represented in the June reports thus far available handled 12,539 ton miles per freight car in June, 1916, and 15,317 ton miles per freight car in June, 1917, an increase of 2,778 ton miles, or 22.2 per cent. As there are about 2,400,000 freight cars in service in the entire country, an increase of 22 per cent in their efficiency would be equivalent, in its effect on the movement of traffic, to the addition of 50,000 cars to the number in service.

Mrs. James Murphy and Miss Ruth
McCormick, who were guests at the Denoyer home here, returned Saturday to their home in northern Minnesota.

BERRY TIME IS NEARING END

Raspberries and blueberries, which comprised a heavy crop in Oneida county this summer, have about disappeared. Throughout the season the woods were daily invaded by berry pickers and there is scarcely a home in Rhinelander which has not a good supply of the fruit preserved for winter use. The slogan "Can all you can" has found ready sympathy among housewives of this city.

It is reported that there will be a good crop of blackberries in northern Wisconsin. The cranberry outlook is also said to be favorable.

JEWELL FAMILY HOME
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Jewell and daughters, Marge, Ruth and Florence, have returned from a two-weeks visit with relatives in Antigo, New London and Appleton.

The trip was made in their car and no bad luck was experienced on the road. The grain and second crop clover is now all in the barns or stacks in that country; the crop is good. Large fields of potatoes were seen and they were in fine shape;

corn is good but about two weeks late. Miss Mattie Grant, a cousin of Mr. Jewell from Horton, Iowa, accompanied them home from Antigo.

This is Miss Grant's first trip to northern Wisconsin. She is favorably impressed with the forests, beautiful lakes and invigorating climate.

WHAT THE GOVERNMENT ASKS

Some of the things the government asks now and will insist upon later if necessary, are:

Two a day deliveries as a maximum and one delivery a day where practicable.

A special charge for special deliveries.

New rules to reduce the expense of the return goods system.

While the movement immediately involves every business man who conducts a delivery service, the public is expected to do its part and these ways are suggested:

1. When shopping do not leave the store empty-handed. Carry parcels with you to the extent of your ability. Help to make this "the fashion."

2. When you have goods to return, do not leave home empty handed.

3. Do not purchase until you are fairly sure you are going to keep it, because a large percentage of all the work done by stores is wasted in handling goods which are returned and have to be sold over again.

4. Avoid C. O. D. purchases.

5. Shop early in the day.

Those are some of the things the public will have to accustom itself to under the national policy adopted and to be enforced and not planned by business men for commercial convenience.

POTATO SHOW IN MADISON, NOV. 19

Biggest Exhibit Of Kind To Be Held In Country This Year

What promises to be the biggest potato show held in the country this year will be staged at Madison, Nov. 19-21.

As in former years, the railroads will cooperate in furnishing refrigerator cars on definite schedules from Wisconsin potato counties to Madison. A. L. Fisher, traveling freight agent of the Northwestern line is chairman of the transportation committee.

The officers of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association are arranging for automobile excursions from the potato growing sections to Madison. Competitive exhibits will be sent to the show from more than twenty of Wisconsin's leading potato counties. An especially attractive premium list has been issued which still further promises to make the forthcoming show the largest event of its kind ever held in America.

Each of the various departments of the show will include both educational and commercial exhibits. K. L. Hatch, assistant director of the agricultural extension service of the University of Wisconsin, has been appointed chairman of the advisory committee on management. Burt Williams is chairman of the reception and entertainment committee and A. W. Hopkins, editor for the State College of Agriculture, is chairman of the publicity committee.

WAR MAKES HIGH SHOE PRICES

(By Harry Selz)

The one great question is—How long will the war last? And the next is, for shoe men—What's going to happen to shoe prices, now and later? And nobody knows the answer to either question.

We can only guess about the war; and anybody's guess is as good as ours. Yours is as good as anyone's.

As for shoe prices, you know already what they are. Since the war began, three years ago, there has been one advance after another and prices are now at the highest point. Sometimes it has seemed as if prices couldn't go any higher; we have felt that way at times. Sometimes it seemed as if they must recede. But they didn't; the steady relentless advance has gone on and we believe that the upward tendency will continue.

We wish we could assure you that prices have reached their highest point; we don't believe it. As long as the war continues, the pressure of these advances will continue. It is said that during the Civil War the price of good shoes went as high as $30 a pair; and the Civil War was a small matter compared with the present conflict.

It is not likely that Civil War prices will be reached; but if the war goes on, it is our belief that we shall reach a point where present prices will seem low. This opinion is based on the repetition of history.

The consumption and destruction of leather in war times is enormous; the replacement of cattle slaughtered for food is inadequate to keep up the supply of hides; and the result is a constantly increasing consumption and a constantly decreasing supply. These two forces pulling against each other must produce higher prices due to scarcity of leather.

The Electric Generator.

Professor Alexander Gray of Cornell university claims for G. S. Moler, then a student at Cornell, the honor of having made one of the first practical applications of the electric generator in America. This was in 1875, when the university was not more than seven years old, and Moler was not yet a graduate. Yet he illuminated the whole campus and thus it came about that the inhabitants of remote farms among the hills of central New York saw the arc light shine at night years before the introduction of this means of illumination in Paris, London, Berlin, New York or any other of the great cities of the world.

Give children fruit to eat between meals instead of crackers (which are hard to digest) and sweet cakes. Fruits supply the needed mineral element for the health of the body.

Rebacking an Oil Painting.

Transferring a painting from an old canvas to a new one requires years of experience to accomplish the simplest part of it. After the picture has been removed from its frame several layers of fine tissue paper are pasted firmly across the surface. When the paper is dry the back of the canvas is made thoroughly wet. Thread by thread it is picked away until nothing remains but the paint, which is fast to the tissue paper. A new canvas is then mounted and glued to the back of the picture. When the glue is dry the tissue paper is moistened and gently removed from the surface. A little cleaning and retouching by a skilled hand make the work complete.

Cold boiled rice and cornmeal can be made into eatable cakes by adding salt, a little flour, two eggs, some sweet milk and baking powder. Fry on a hot, greasy griddle.

ELCHO TO HAVE HIGH SCHOOL

The Antigo Journal states that Elcho will have a full fledged high school beginning September 4. Although the establishment of one was authorized some time ago it was only recently that the final steps were taken. As required by law for a union free high school a separate board has been elected, the members of which are William Fenton, clerk; Anton Follstad, director; George H. Bauer, treasurer. The annual meeting of the board will be held in March. Two teachers will give their full time to high school work; they are T. O. Dougherty, principal, and Tessie O'Keefe, assistant. There are five teachers in the Elcho graded school.

BREAKING FISH LAW EXPENSIVE

Paul and S. A. Sanberg, new arrivals in Rhinelander, were each fined $50 and costs in municipal court Monday for violating the state fish and game laws. The men, who recently came to Wisconsin, pleaded guilty to the charge of fishing without a license.

Conservation Wardens Gwidt and McKenzie who arrested the two offenders, are hot on the trail of violators and are doing much for the conservation of wild life in northern Wisconsin.

All Letter Perfect.

"You've been to the altar three times, I believe?"

"Yes."

"And I twice. The minister is an old timer. I guess we won't have to rehearse."—Kansas City Journal.

One hour of the present is worth two in the future and a hundred in the past.

Rubber Output to Increase.

The rubber output of the world will be increased to nearly 200,000 tons this year, according to the London Times' annual financial and commercial review. This is an increase of about 50,000 tons over the previous year's production.

The acreage devoted to rubber is now estimated at one-half million, of which Malaysia has 670,000 acres. The United States is expected to take more than half of the world's production.

He Knows Antiques.

JL Poincare, president of France, has a collection of books on antique furniture that is reputed to be worth $50,000. There are 7,000 books in the collection.

When Pressing Silk.

Always press silk under a piece of muslin to prevent the silk from becoming hard and crackly. First dampen the muslin, and use a moderately hot iron till the muslin is quite dry.

Vegetable Cutlets.

Soak one cupful dried peas over night in cold water to cover. Drain, put in saucepan, cover with cold water and bring to boiling point. Again drain, cover with cold water and add two slices of onion, six cloves, 13 peppercorns, a bit of bay leaf, two teaspoonfuls salt and one-quarter teaspoonful soda. Cook until soft, drain and rub through a sieve.

Add two-thirds cupful finely-chopped peanuts, one cupful dried bread crumbs, one-half teaspoonful salt, one eighth teaspoonful pepper and eight tablespoonfuls cream. Shape in form of cutlets and saute in butter. Garnish with paper frills.

Now They Don't Speak.

"He has asked me to marry him."

"Well?"

"What answer shall I give him?"

"Say yes. I believe in answering a fool according to his folly."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

For the cause that lacks assistance;
For the wrong that needs resistance;
For the future in the distance
And the good that we can do."

Don't forget that next Monday is Labor Day. See that you celebrate.
Attend the Oneida County Fair next week. It's a duty you owe the community.

Even the poor old Sultan has been hit by the H. C. of L. He has limited himself to ten wives.

To stand while the band plays the "Star Spangled Banner" is about the extent of some men's patriotism.

The Michigan peach crop is said to be a failure. Well, who cares. Rhinelander "peaches" are as sweet as ever.

Cassian people are to be congratulated on the success of their community fair. Why not make it an annual event?

The man who goes through life calling everything good is not near as valuable an asset to a town as the man who kicks when a kick is necessary.

Henry Ford advocates that the government take 95 percent of all war profits in a statement from him in Detroit published by the New York Evening Mail.

"I am in favor of a 95 per cent tax on all war profits," he declared.

Regarding his own company, he said it was building aeroplane cylinders for the government on a basis of no profit.

Every loyal citizen in Oneida county should manage to attend the County Fair—if its only to take a peek. Don't be a slacker, be there!

Will the new flag pole for the Curran school grounds be raised as rapidly as the one at the city hall?

When Ed. Forbes engaged in selling bottled light this country lost a mighty good auctioneer. You should have seen him at the Cassian fair. Every time he raised that stub fin, ger it meant a quarter more.

Replying to the Pope's request for peace, the President answers: "There is no one whose word can be trusted." He says there is no one to negotiate with. On one side there are men whose words can be taken, on the other are men whose words cannot be. The negotiation would result in scraps of paper. When that government (German) went morally bankrupt it left a vacancy on the other side of the peace conference table. There is no one there, there is no one whose word we can take. The German people can fill that vacant place if they will, but until they give us a negotiator whose word is as good as ours we cannot exchange pledges over that table. We are done with trickery and broken oaths.

THE VALUE OF WORK

The call is made today more than ever before for the nation to speed up, for men and women to settle down to work in a more serious way than ever before. The call should be heard with joy, for work has never been anything else than a blessing. To work, to do something useful with hand and brain, is the plain duty of everyone. And it is not a duty only; it should be both a pleasure and a satisfaction. The man who is afraid to soil his hands, to bend his back, cannot hope to retain the respect of his fellows. It is the idler who is looked down upon, not the man who does honest labor, though it be of the humblest kind.

Men and women who would be looked up to in their community, must be willing to serve, must take part proudly in the work of the world. Now, more than ever, are workers needed. No one has a right to be idle. The saying that the world owes one a living does not pass. Everyone owes it to the world to make a living. Idleness, self-indulgence, taking it easy, is resented by sensible, right-minded people.

The spirit of humanity comes in its fullest measure to the worker. Idleness breeds selfishness, vice. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do," is not merely a happy turn of speech. It contains a vital truth. The most humble work is honorable if well done. The one who honors his work will have honor done him. The shirker is despised. "He that can work," as Carlyle said, "is born a king."—Milwaukee Journal.

THE MONEY SLACKERS

Senator LaFollette's revenue bill was adequate and right. It met the situation. His conscription of 80% of war profits is entirely justified. It should have been adopted by the Senate. It is to be hoped now that the thirty Senators who have pledged themselves to a modification of this bill succeed in getting their program thru.

Wealth is disposed to dodge its duty. LaFollette is absolutely right in insisting that wealth shall do its duty now.

No better evidence is to be found of the disposition of men of great wealth to dodge their duty to their country than in the report that the treasury department at Washington is about ready to start a colossal drive on the thousands of income and corporation tax dodgers whose frauds and evasions have been uncovered thru months of painstaking investigation by hundreds of revenue agents and inspectors.

Senator Leis of Illinois recently made the statement that these tax dodgers withheld more than $200,000,000 which by law belong to Uncle Sam. These figures, he secures from the treasury department and it is this snug little item that Uncle Sam is going out to get. Every American will applaud him in the game of getting it.

The round-up of the tax thieves will not be limited to any particular state or section, but will be nationwide. Into the drag-net will come not only New York millionaires, but hundreds of rich farmers, small town bankers and business men who have been found by the revenue agents to have been more flagrant defrauders of the treasury than the metropolitan plutocrats who come first to mind when tax dodging is mentioned. Many pillars of the church and philanthropists, it is said, have been caught on the meshes of the treasury's net.—Madison State Journal.

Thackeray's Mistake.

Thackeray probably wrote the ttiest and most legible hand of any distinguished author. But the mast the easiest and most flexible style English fiction occasionally made less and irritating slips. He "different to," which is a "com and quite unaccountable mistake compared to," which is as bad, one would think of saying or w "compare this to that," yet you "compared to" in print every d. the week. And he also fell into common error of making the sum plural instead of the prefix—the "Potters," for instance, in "The comes," instead of the "Misses Potters."—London Standard.

PRIDE IN COLTS AND HORSES

Farmer Can Well Afford to Feed and Care for Young Animals to Attract Buyers.

(By W. L. BLIZZARD, Department of Animal Husbandry, Oklahoma A. and M. College, Stillwater.)

Every farmer should have a pride in the colts and horses he raises. If the packer and brewer can afford to pay fancy prices for flashy geldings largely for advertising purposes, the farmer can well afford to feed and care for his young colts in such a way that they will be attractive to these buyers.

In fact, every farmer should be ambitious, not only to raise the best crops, but also to produce the best stock of all kinds. If he has the best teams in the neighborhood, they will

AVERAGE LABOR FOR HORSES

Horse on Grain Farm Works Three Hours a Day—Different on Diversified Crop Farm.

On the grain farm, the heaviest work for the horses comes in April, May, August, September and October. The rest of the time there is practically nothing for the horses to do. But enough horses have to be kept during the year to take care of the work during these busy months. When averaged up, the horse on the grain farm only works three hours a day. These figures were secured in an investigation by the Minnesota experiment station, under the direction of Thomas Cooper, now director of the North Dakota experiment station.

In this same investigation it was found that when the crops are diversified, the horse labor is better distributed. There is less work for the horses in the seasons that are the busiest on the all-grain farm, and there is no work for the horses when there is no work for the horses on the all-grain farm.

WINTER WORK FOR STALLION

No Reason Why He Should Not Be Worked Like Any Other Horse—Give Reasonable Exercise.

It is a mistake to keep a stallion idle during the fall and winter. Though this is often done there is no reason why he should not be worked like any other horse. If this is not possible he should at least be given the opportunity of taking a reasonable amount of exercise. Also the feed should be about the same as that of other horses.

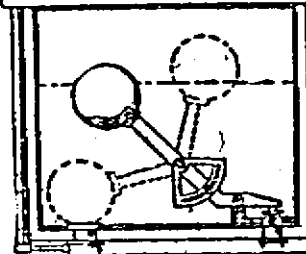

Feed about one pound of good hay for every 100 pounds of weight and in addition to this, give enough grain, equal parts of corn, bran and oats, to keep the animal in good flesh, but not too fat. If this be done he will be more efficient during the breeding season than would be the case were he kept in breeding condition all through the year.

DRINKING WATER FOR STOCK

Automatic Device, Invented by Indiana Man, Insures Full Supply and Saves All Wastes.

An ingenious contrivance for use in watering troughs has been invented by an Indiana man. It consists of an automatic device for filling the trough as fast as the water is depleted by animals drinking it. The pipe through which the water is supplied is fitted with a spring valve.

An angle-shaped arm is pivoted in the bottom of the tank near this pipe, with the lower end of the arm resting on the valve and the upper end terminating in a wooden ball, which floats on the surface of the water. The principle of this appliance will be

As Float Sinks Valve Opens, grasped at once. When the water is at a certain height in the trough the ball will float in such a position that the arm will keep the valve on the supply pipe closed. As the water is depleted by stock drinking the ball sinks with it and the arm on the valve rises, admitting fresh water. This device insures always a full supply of fresh water in the tank and saves the waste water that otherwise runs over when the trough is filled from a running source.

FEW SUGGESTIONS ON HORSE

Pedigree Has Considerable Weight—Keeping Animal's Skin Clean Is Essential to Health.

While pedigree does not make the horse it has considerable weight when his value is to be taken into consideration.

It should not be one good breed of horses against another, so much as the well-bred against the scrub.

Keeping the skin of the work horses clean enables them to sweat freely and this is essential to their health.

If a horse's neck is tired by tight reining, he is a tired horse and he has been tired without accomplishing anything.

Splendid Farm Team.

attract a great deal of attention. The farmer's son would certainly become deeply interested in a fine team of purebred mares and the colts they raise. It would stimulate him and encourage him to put forth his best efforts for their care and management. The boy who is proud of the stock on the farm and who may raise and develop a colt good enough to win at one of the local fairs is not nearly so likely to leave the farm.

FEED CATTLE FOR SHIPMENT

Pennsylvania Experiment Station Recommends Water Be Withheld Before Shipping.

In preparing cattle for shipment considerable attention should be given to feeding so as to lower the shrinkage as much as possible. The Pennsylvania State college agricultural experiment station recommends that water be withheld from animals before shipping and that they be fed timothy hay and whole oats to prevent looseness during shipping. Under such treatment cattle will arrive at the market in a more attractive appearance and will take on a much heavier "fill."

REDUCE FERTILITY OF FARM

Raising of Grade Steers Is Easier Than Growing Grain—Less Care for the Farmer.

It is known that grain-raising reduces the fertility of the farm in a much greater degree than the raising of stock.

The raising of grade steers is easier work and less care for the average farmer now that reliable farm labor is becoming so difficult to obtain.

HE IS PROGRESSIVE FARMER

Man Breeding Purebred Stock Is the One With Best Surroundings and Farm Buildings.

The man who has gone into the breeding of purebred live stock is the man with the best surroundings, the best buildings on his farm; he keeps his farm in the best condition—in fact it is something which tends to develop him.

USING ANTICHOLOERA SERUM

Vaccination of Hogs and Proper Care Will Prevent Disease—Chance For More Money.

Hog cholera is absolutely preventable. The use of the anticholera serum—vaccinating the hogs—and proper care will do the work.

With this hoodoo removed there ought to be much more money in hogs than ever before.

CLEARWATERLAKE

Mrs. Gladys Moses of Green Bay is visiting the Korth family this week.

Earl Korth has returned from the Madison sanatorium, where he has been taking a short course in Red Cross work, for six weeks.

Mrs. Pearl Peterson is home on two weeks vacation, from Racine, Wis., where she has been assisting her husband in evangelistic work this summer. Mrs. Peterson expects to teach school at Berrien Springs, while her husband will finish his ministerial course at the college.

J. H. Higgins has sold all his Guernsey cattle and has stocked up with the Holstein breed.

Cottages are being built this summer on the shore, the Planting Ground Lake; this is a great improvement for the northern country.

Charley Hermann of Antigo has bought the 20 acre farm of Rob McKellar and will build a new house in the near future.

Ed. Price has been putting stumps for Dr. Cady the last two weeks. Mr. Boyer is piling them up ready to burn.

Clark Kunev has bought several acres of land northeast of Clearwater and is putting up barns and sheds, employing from 16 to 20 hands in all kinds of labor both in farm and carpenter work, he has in a large crop of potatoes. We are sorry to hear that Mr. Ridgway lost the only horse he had last week. Such things will happen to the best of men.

Mr. Reed by the help of Lamant Boyer is trying to make a ditch on his marsh with the use of dynamite, hoping by so doing he will be able to run the water off into the Clearwater Lake; it is the best land for crops if it can be drained.

We wish to say the prospect for a good crop of potatoes, in and around Clearwater is sure. The frost the other night did not hurt us to amount to anything.

IN DESPERATION

By C. B. LEWIS.

Phineas Talbot was bashful as a baby. If any neighboring woman came in and lifted him up, he cried because he could not hide his face. He was bashful as a boy. When he attended school nothing so gave him the fidgets as to have his teacher call him or a pretty girl smile at him. As a youth he was still more bashful. His mother had to coax and bribe him to get him to go on an errand to the store. If a girl came to the Talbot house, away went Phineas on the run.

Phineas grew to a bashful manhood. He learned piano making, and, in time, he opened a little agency. It was almost torture to have two or three young ladies enter his place and begin to talk music to him. Bashfulness hurt his business, and men often talked to him about it, but he was born to blush and stammer. He might kick himself a dozen times a day, but it would do no good.

There was something in store for Phineas, and the perspiration stood on his brow at the mere thought of it. He lived with his mother and lived very contentedly, but she was old and growing older, and the day would come when he would have to set up a home for himself. A single man, bashful or not, cannot make a home for himself. He has got to have a wife to do it. Great heavens! Phineas had got to ask some woman to be his wife, and how was he ever to get through with it without being made a cripple for life!

Every morning when he went to his place of business he passed a house where there was a good-looking girl. Sometimes she sat in the window viewing the street and sometimes she was working among the flowers in the front yard. Of course she never smiled at him, and of course he took one look and then looked away.

On a certain summer morning the unknown maiden ran across the street barcheered to speak to a young lady of her acquaintance. Just then Phineas Talbot came along. Just then, as well, a man came along leading a cow. Every sight was a new sight with her. She missed the blackberry bushes and bullbustles growing in the pasture. She was nervous. She was perturbed. Presently she grew excited and afraid.

All at once that cow concluded that she would return home before something awful happened. She started on her return down the street just as the good-looking girl started across the street for her home. She made for the girl with a bellow and her head held low down. There was a scream of terror—other screams from pedestrians, and Phineas Talbot had jumped two feet high. He saw and realized everything in a moment. It was his duty to go to that girl's rescue. Bashfulness chained his feet for half a minute. Then a sort of crisis seemed to come. He must do it or die. He rushed out into the street and grabbed that cow by the horns and prevented a tragedy. The cow tossed her head and lifted Phineas clear off the ground. She swung her head to and fro and swung him with it, and in one of her swings intended to land him on the roof of a house, she fell down and her owner came up and recovered his rope.

Phineas wasn't much the worse for his hero work. He was gone almost before the good-looking girl had realized her danger and recovered from her fright. A small crowd gathered and she was conducted across the street, and every one had a word of praise for the daring young man who had seized the opportunity as well as the cow. Phineas hurried down to his shop, and he sat down to commune with himself, and he soon saw another ghost rise up before him. Although he hadn't been in society much, he knew the rules of good breeding. He had saved that girl's life and he must call upon her to talk the matter over. If he didn't call she must think him a boor.

It haunted him all day, and when he went home at night he went by a lighted street. He told his mother as soon as he got in the house that he had been feeling strange all day and thought he would go to a doctor. The old lady was looking for something like this, and she told him straight out that he must make that call. Phineas could not get out of it. He delayed and delayed, and he went over to the girl's house like a murderer walking to the electric chair. He made all ready to run and then rang the doorbell. In half a minute the door was opened and there stood the girl herself. She had a smile on her face, and she reached out a well-shaped arm and a soft hand and bade him enter. She did all the talking for the first five minutes. She thanked him again and again, and praised his courage and strength, and, before he knew what he was doing, the bashful man was talking. He went over there to make a call, and he ended it by making a visit, and going home very jubilant to say to his mother:

"Why, I was there a full hour, mother, and I never fainted away once! I almost hope I shall see her every morning as I pass along."

Phineas did see her a good many mornings. It took him about eight months to peel off his bashfulness, and the mother lived to see her son secure what makes a home and happiness.

THE HOME GUARD

By EARL REED SILVERS.

When the Railway Home Guard was organized Doris Brown was inclined to be critical.

"It will never do me any good or you, either," she told Pete Alberts, one of the high privates in the rear ranks. "I don't see why in the world you wanted to join."

"I didn't want to, exactly," Pete hastened to assure her. "But I felt that the city needed protection."

"Humph! A lot of protection you could give us. What do you have to do?"

"My especial duty is to guard the approach over the East Milton avenue bridge," Pete explained with dignity. "As soon as a summons comes I am to seize my revolver, club, badge, flashlight and whistle and beat it to the bridge. Then I am to refuse to let any one enter the city until I receive orders from police headquarters."

Doris smiled ever so faintly.

"Why did they give you the Milton avenue bridge?" she asked.

"Because it's only five minutes from my house. And they probably knew that I had an especial grudge against someone living on the other side."

"I suppose you mean Jim?"

"You supposed right. Are you going to let me come to see you tomorrow night?"

"I can't; someone else is coming."

"Jim, I suppose."

"You supposed right," Doris smiled mockingly.

When Pete went home that evening he smiled happily. Something seemed to tell him that he was going to see Doris within twenty-four hours. To be perfectly frank, Pete had received inside information that the Home Guard was to be called out the next night, and a plan had entered his mind which argued ill for Jim Stone.

The inside information proved to be correct, for at exactly 7:30 of the evening in question Pete received a telephone call to report at once at his station. He seized his gun and other paraphernalia and joyfully departed upon his mission.

It was a dark night and the bridge was hidden in the shadows. For 20 minutes Pete sat upon the iron railing waiting for someone to approach. Finally his patience was rewarded.

"Halt!" he cried.

The approaching figure halted.

"What's up?" he asked wonderingly.

"I'm a member of the home guard and I've been instructed not to let any one pass until I receive further orders. You'll have to go back."

The light of understanding came suddenly to the challenged party.

"Oh, hello, Pete," he said. "I'm Jim Stone."

"I don't care if you're President Wilson. You can't pass," Pete said.

"But you know me. I'm not a German spy or anything."

"I didn't say you were. But I'm a police officer now, and orders are orders."

"You're crazy, Pete," he exclaimed.

Irritably, "You're not supposed to hold up people you know."

"That's for me to say," Pete took a step forward. "You'll have to go back home," he announced.

"But I've got an engagement, I tell you."

"Where?"

"That doesn't concern you at all."

Pete wondered for a moment.

"It looks rather suspicious to me," he announced finally; "you want to go into town but you won't tell me why."

"If I tell you where I want to go will you let me pass?" he asked.

Pete shook his head.

Jim thought evil thoughts. Finally he spoke again.

"Are you still going on with this farce?" he demanded.

"Yep."

"I suppose I'll have to go back then?"

"Yes, I guess you will."

Without a word Jim Stone turned around and retraced his steps homeward. Pete breathed a sigh of relief.

He waited anxiously for ten minutes, and then a figure appeared from the direction of the town. It was the squad sergeant.

"All right," he announced. "You kin go back now. Every member of the squad reported."

Pete ran all the way home, and when he had recovered his breath he picked up the telephone.

"Give me 100-J," he said.

Doris answered his call.

"No," she announced. "Jim hasn't come, and it's nine o'clock. If you hurry right over you may take his place."

Pete hurried right over.

Tore Holes in Roof.

A story of a hailstorm which swept through part of Indiana comes from George Hobson, a farmer, six miles west of Columbus, says the Indianapolis News.

"I do not expect anybody to believe what I have to say," declared Hobson, "and all I wish is that you could have been at my house and seen those hailstones, so you would know I am telling the truth. I don't say the hailstones were as large as hen eggs, because they were several times larger. They seemed to have frozen together while coming down, and masses of ice struck my house and in my yard that were as big as the crown of my hat. If there is one hole in the roof of my house there are a hundred, and some of them are so large you could drop a brick through without it touching the edges."

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

NORWAY.

Investigation of the conspiracy to sink with German bombs several Norwegian ships has been completed and action taken against seven Finlanders and two Germans. They are accused of having transported many explosives from Germany to Norway and were held to be paid by German espionage headquarters at Stockholm. The leader of those arrested called himself Baron von Rosenfeld. According to the Tidens Tegn 1,000 kilograms of explosives were seized, including several infernal machines. These were inclosed in cases resembling lamps of coal and were to have been put in the coal bunkers of Norwegian ships.

Norway took her place as a spectator of the war, honeycombed with German cultural ideas and enmeshed in German relations on every hand. The university, the army, the schools, the church, and to a large extent her commerce, were sources and centers of German influence. To cap it all, trade with Germany was hugely profitable. And yet the sympathies of the Norwegian people have been pro-ally from the time the first shot was fired by a German gun. The political instincts and ideals of the people were stronger than the cultural ties by which the leading circles were bound to Germany. As the character of the world contest gradually became clearer the current of national opinion absorbed the German eddies and set with swelling volume toward the powers fighting for democracy. In spite of all subtle forces the faces of the Norwegian people are set firmly against Germany in this war. For they can see that victory for the central powers would mean the end of an independent and free Norway. They feel, almost with passion, that the allied powers, and especially the United States, are fighting for what is the life breath of Norway.—N. Grevstad in the New York Tribune.

The loss the Kristianstad had been explained as follows: The Kristianstad sailed through a dense fog all the way from Halifax to Portugal Cove, N. F., where the ship struck. Captain Hjordal had slept very little, and this may have affected his judgment. It is said that he did not make a sufficiently careful calculation of the current. The ship was making only half speed, and the sea was sounded continually. But the fog was so dense that the breakwaters ahead could not be seen until it was too late. The rudder was turned violently and the engines stopped, so that the prow did not strike the rocks, but the broadside of the ship drifted against them about 200 yards from the main land. In the course of the next few days two other ships were grounded at the same place, and a third one came very near running into the wreck of the Kristianstad, which proves that Portugal Cove is a very dangerous place.

Twelve members of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Benguela, captured June 15 by a German submarine and used for 16 days as a "decoy vessel," reached an Atlantic port on a Spanish vessel. According to the sailors, they were held prisoner on board their own ship since the capture. The vessel was in charge of Germana cruising about in waters usually frequented by merchant ships. The U-boat party was submerged and hovered about to attack anything that might be tempted to come near the Norwegian. The effort was fruitless, however, the men said, as during the entire 16 days nothing was sighted. At the end of that time the Benguela was found of its stores, the crew set adrift in their boats and the vessel destroyed by bombs. The men were picked up and landed at a Spanish port. The submarine carried a crew of 50 men and one of the officers told the Norwegians that they had been cut for five months from their base.

The city of Stavanger is going to rent 12,000 horsepower of electric energy for a period of ten years from the Norsk company. One of the interesting features of the plan is, that the cable is to span the Høgsfjord, a distance of 5,000 feet. It is said that this will be the longest span of its kind in the world.

The Norwegian steamer Christian Bors, of 4,950 tons, was damaged to the extent of $100,000 by fire August 20 while lying at her dock in South Brooklyn. The steamer arrived recently from Buenos Aires and had almost completed the discharge of a cargo of wheat. Several Brooklyn fire companies and three fireboats fought the blaze and had it under control two hours after it was discovered. The fire is believed due to spontaneous combustion. The Christian Bors was owned in Bergen and was under charter to the Prince line.

FINLAND.

A dispatch from Helsingfors declares that the landdag, ignoring the government's dissolution manifesto, will resume its sessions. Nevertheless, the socialist majority is preparing for contingency that Petrograd may enforce the dissolution and the holding of elections. In an exchange of shots between Russian troops and unknown persons at Helsingfors several Finns were killed and others wounded. The disturbance began when the soldiers were fired upon from a crowd.

Disorders occasioned by the scarcity of food have led to a cabinet crisis. The senators have requested the governor general to transmit their resignations to the provisional government. The governor general has asked M. Kekkonen, vice president of the department of economics and former president of the landdag, to form a cabinet. He has accepted. A general strike has been declared.

Starvation again threatens northern Finland. Of the 250,000,000 kilos of four which Finland requested from Russia to carry over the country from July to October, only 65,000,000 kilos were supplied.

In addition to its other troubles, Finland is now being ravaged by great forest fires. The fires extend along the west coast, south of Vasa, and are visible from the Swedish shore.

Ex-King Constantine of Greece wished to buy the Schott estate in the island of Lolland, but a Copenhagen broker offered $27,000 more for the property and got it.

The Danish ship owners and seamen have resolved to demand indemnities from Germany for the torpedoing of Danish vessels and the lives lost with them.

The entire village of Elmeland, Fren, has been destroyed by fire. Three persons were burned to death.

The fishermen on the west coast of Denmark have ceased their operations on account of an extension of the U-boat zone.

SWEDEN.

Refusal of the United States to grant passports to the delegates of the international socialist conference at Stockholm for the discussion of peace terms has amazed and halted the leaders of that movement. A Hjalmar Branting, leader of the Scandinavian socialist committee arranging the convention, denounces America's attitude. "This is a declaration of war against all preliminary peace work," he says. "But the military forces alone cannot end the war. It must be ended by work within the belligerent nations, and the socialist is the natural bearer of this work. Despite refusal of passports, the peace work will continue without working for any special group of belligerents. The leaders have been accused of being first German, then entente agents, but internationalism follows its ideals, the ideals of humanity. The refusal of passports will lead to a rupture between the governments concerned and the socialist parties which have been determined to be represented in the conference. The decision may lead to far-reaching consequences. It is more than doubtful whether this passport refusal will not turn out to be a grave political mistake. As to how it will affect the Stockholm conference, the only certainty is that the conference will not be abandoned."

Dr. Jakob Billstrom, who has inspected the establishments of the captives of war that are interned in Switzerland, found that drunkenness prevailed to an alarming degree among them, and he has urged the temperance people of Sweden to have translations of Swedish temperance publications distributed among the 30,000 German and French soldiers interned in Switzerland.

The average heat for the month of June was a record-breaker for the period covering the past 160 years, the weather bureau of Stockholm having been in operation since the year 1776. The average daily temperature was 64.8 degrees F., while the next highest, that of June, 1892, was a trifle over 61 degrees.

The government has appointed three very prominent men to dispose of the cases of young men who object to the carrying of arms on religious grounds.

By a vote of 119 to 50 the second chamber of the riksdag passed the bill empowering the government to draft men for service as woodcutters. On account of the scarcity of coal, the government has decided to cut thousands of loads of wood to be used in place of coal during the coming winter.

A fine hagen crop is in prospect. This means a good deal to the poor people of many rural districts of Sweden. The hagen is by far the most valuable wild berry in the country, and a good crop is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. In former years a large part of the crop was exported to Germany and other foreign countries.

About 70 cafes in Gothenburg have stopped the serving of coffee on account of the prohibitive cost of that article.

PROTECT THE DEER THIS YEAR

While fifteen states will have no big game hunting this year because deer have been exterminated or because the stock has been so reduced that the season is closed, there are thirty-three other states, according to the United States Department of Agriculture which will have an open season for deer hunting. This season ranges from four days in New Jersey and six days in Massachusetts and Vermont, to two months or more in some of the southern states. These seasons will open in August in Oregon and in most parts of California; in September in the rest of California and in Idaho, South Carolina and Virginia; in October in Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Georgia, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico; in November in Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and several of the southern states; and in December in Pennsylvania. In about one third of the states the law allows the hunter one deer a year, and in most others, two.

The department of agriculture urges all persons to cooperate to secure the best possible protection of deer so as to get the maximum amount of venison as a source of meat. It is estimated that about 80,000 deer are killed legally in the United States each year. These produce nearly 10,000,000 pounds of venison. The biological survey of the United States department of agriculture says that this number of deer can be very largely increased, since only two or three states produce more than 10,000 deer a year and many less than 1,000. When 1,000 deer are obtained in a state as densely populated as Massachusetts, it should not be difficult, says the department, to increase the total in the other states by at least 25 per cent. Every pound of venison brought in from the woods should be made to save a pound of beef, mutton or pork raised on ranch or farm. The co-operation of game commissioners, conservation associations and other organizations is requested by the department as an aid in securing accurate reports of the number of deer killed in each state this year. Such reports should prove of value for comparison with deer annually taken in any state the returns from other years, and may be increased without impairing the breeding stock.

City Health Reports
The New York State Department of Health has made an interesting investigation of the comparative death rates of New York City and rural New York state. What has been disclosed is of great interest to us in Wisconsin because ours is largely a rural population. Whether or not a similar situation exists with us I have not the information at hand to state, but I do not know any good reason why it should not exist. There is a great deal of difference between New York City and Milwaukee, but there is not so great a difference between the population of rural New York and rural Wisconsin, except it be that our average age is likely to be lower. Obviously, the greater the average age of the population is, the higher will the death rate be. Possibly, therefore, our rural health conditions may actually be not so good as New York. In 1900 New York's city rate was far higher than that of the country districts. But the city rate has declined steadily from that time and the rural rate has remained practically stationary. In 1910 they were the same. Since then the city death rate has been considerably lower than the rural and declining steadily.

City conditions are, for the most part, unfavorable to health. Country conditions are generally favorable. How does it come to pass then, that the city becomes safer than the country as regards life and healthfulness? The answer doubtless lies in the fact that the city has set out by the expenditure of money and the employment of physicians, nurses and other experts; by the securing of a clean water supply, sanitary sewage disposal system, inspection of foods, etc., to buy health for its people. In the country, on the other hand, the disposition has likely been to depend upon its natural advantages and be content with things as they were.

Just as the poor boy is likely to become the rich man, so is the disease ridden community likely to straggle to free itself of the overshadowing spectre of death and sickness. And just as the poor boy may start a fortune which piles up far beyond his original ambition and needs, so may the community which would have been content with an average of healthful conditions out run its neighbors and become essentially a health resort.

EGGS ARE RICH IN PROTEIN

Ninety-Seven Per Cent of Portion Eaten Is Digested and Shell Is Only Part Wasted.

The principal food element furnished by eggs is protein, the nitrogenous tissue-building element whose presence in considerable proportion also gives meats, fish, milk, cheese, etc., their special food value. Eggs can, therefore, be substituted in the diet for the latter foods without materially altering the protein consumed.

In addition, eggs also furnish fat and a number of valuable mineral elements, including sulphur, phosphorus, iron, calcium and magnesium. In an easily assimilable form, and are believed also to be rich in certain essential vitalizing elements called vitamins.

Like milk and unlike meats, eggs do not contain certain substances convertible in the body into uric acid. Their shells constitute the only waste materials. Ninety-seven per cent of the portion eaten—a high proportion compared to other foods—is digested. No extended cooking is necessary for eggs, and there is, therefore, a saving of time, labor and fuel in their preparation when they are compared with many other foods.

For all these reasons eggs deserve an important place in the diet for use at times in place of other foods rich in protein, provided egg prices are not so high as to outweigh the other considerations.

DEVIATION OF THE COMPASS

Only at Certain Points Does the Magnetic Needle Point Due North and South.

Soon after the compass was invented it was noticed that it did not point true north and south. For a long time it was supposed that this deviation or declination was everywhere the same until Columbus, on his way to America in 1492, discovered near the Azores a place of no declination. Maps now published by the different governments give lines of equal declination. In the extreme eastern section of the United States the declination is as much as 20 degrees west. This decreases to zero at a place near Cincinnati, O., and becomes an easterly declination amounting to 20 degrees east in the northwest.

The discovery as to "dip" was made nearly 100 years after the time of Columbus. It was found that if a compass needle is perfectly balanced so that it can swing up and down as well as sideways its north-seeking pole will dip down at a considerable angle. This angle increases as one goes farther north, and decreases as one goes south. In the southern hemisphere the north-seeking pole of a needle points up in the air.

During Shackleton's south polar expedition, a point was found on the great antarctic continent where a needle would hang vertically with its north-seeking pole on top.

Profitmongering.

To those who dislike that intruder into the English speech, "profitmongering," there is at hand the more formidable word "profitmongering." For good old "monger," which merely means "dealer," has its roots deep in the past—the shady past. In Sanskrit it means "to deceive," and although there are honest mongers of fish or iron, the practices of too many other sorts of dealers have deeply tainted the word, as all scandal-mongers know. Trading and cheating are sometimes closely related, and even Ireland's "Great Book of the Law" gave legal sanction to the kniship. That venerable document defines the three rents of land—the fair rent (which a member of the clan paid), the stipulated rent, and the rack rent, imposed upon the stranger. The stranger, suffered so much under this ancient village community law that the "monger" in time became a somewhat respectable person.—London Chronicle.

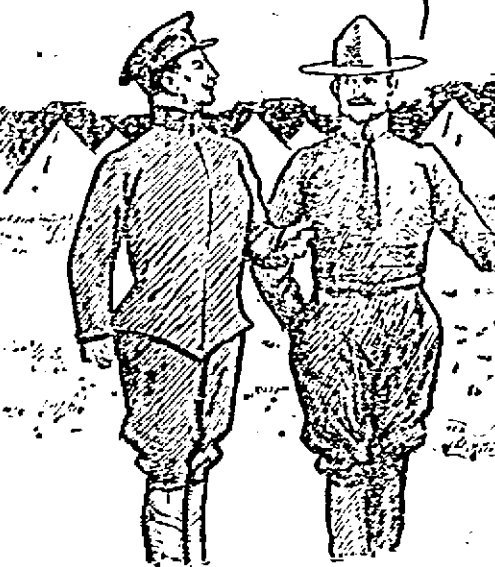

Mark Twain on George Eliot.

Mark Twain was very outspoken in his comments on books. He did not like George Eliot's novels, and in a letter to W. D. Howells, written back in 1885, and published in Harper's Monthly, he says: "I bored through 'Middlemarch' during the last week, with its labored and tedious analyses of feelings and motives, its paltry and tiresome people, its unexciting and uninteresting story and its frequent blinding flashes of single-sentence poetry, philosophy, wit and what not, and nearly died from overwork. I wouldn't read another of those books for a farm. I did try to read one other, 'Daniel Deronda.' I dragged through three chapters, losing flesh all the time, and then was honest enough to quit and confess myself that I haven't any romance literature appetite, as far as I can see, except for your books."

Nature's Wondrous Ways.

One of the most curious of nature's inventions is that of an egg that can't roll off a shelf. It is absolutely important to a certain species of seabird—the murre. This feathered creature builds no nest, but lays its eggs on narrow shelves of precipitous rocks. Ordinary eggs—those of the domestic hen, for example, if deposited in such places, would be liable to roll off and smash. But the murre's egg is of such a shape that if disturbed it simply rolls in a circle. Such being the case, the female murre experiences no anxiety. She could incubate her progeny on an ordinary mantelpiece and be satisfied of their safety.

SIX FULL DAYS OF RACING AT THE WISCONSIN STATE FAIR

Four Days of Harness Racing, Includes Two
$5,000 Stakes—Professional and State Auto Drivers Will Be Seen During Friday and Saturday in Championship Events.

Milwaukee, Aug. 29.—Followers of harness and automobile racing will find plenty worth their patronage at this year's State Fair, Sept. 10 to 16. There will be four days of the trotters and pacers, Sept. 10, 11, 12 and 13, and two days of the auto speed demons, Sept. 14 and 15.

The star race on the opening day will be the $2,000 2:45 pace. On Tuesday the 2:05 trot and the 2:00 pace will be the features. On Wednesday, State Day, the $5,000 Plankinton Hotel 2:12 pace will be raced, and on Thursday, Milwaukee Day, the $5,000 Chamber of Commerce stake for 2:12 trotters and the $1,500 Free-for-all pace will be star events.

Although harness racing at the Wisconsin State Fair has attained a high plane and is easily of Grand Circuit caliber, it remains for this year's Fair to present the banner program of its sixty-seven years of history. The great Fair is able to accomplish this because members of the Chamber of Commerce and the owner of the Plankinton Hotel have guaranteed the two big $5,000 stakes.

Many trotters and pacers will come from the Grand Circuit to compete for money hung up at the State Fair, and the Milwaukee track is the only western track that will see these horses this year.

The free-for-all pace, for instance, is expected to have among its entries William, Hal Day and Ben Earl, all racing sensations. Automobile racing will be furnished by fourteen professional drivers, headed by Louis Dubrow, world's champion dirt track driver, and all of the Wisconsin racing drivers who will compete in five state championships for which trophies and money will be awarded.

Among the trophies will be the $2,000 Fabst Blue Ribbon Cup, actually worth

LARGEST FLAG IN THE WORLD.

The largest American flag ever made and, by the way, the largest flag in the world, again will be one of the big features of the fair. It will be unfurled each day and night while patriotic airs are sung by the crowds, all the bands on the grounds playing accompaniments.

$2,000. To become the property of any driver this cup must be won three years in succession.

It is expected that Saturday will be chiefly devoted to the state championships.

One of the chief events for professionals will be an attempt to lower the track record of 99 1/2 seconds, made by Bob Hurman in the famous Blitzen Bentz. Dubrow believes he can clip a fraction of a second off this mark if weather and track are ideal.

Citizens of Milwaukee have asked that Dubrow make an effort to lower the track record after the harness racing program has been concluded on Milwaukee Day, and perhaps this request will be granted.

Four Spiders to the Pound.

The lizard spider (Meles mygale) is the largest species of venomous spider known. He is of a bright yellow color with three red stripes on his back and a crescent of pure black on the abdomen. Full grown specimens of the lizard spider (so called because his chief food is small lizards, frogs, etc.) measure four inches across the back and have legs ten inches long. Four full grown males collected by a British exploring expedition weighed one pound four ounces. This giant of the spider family is a native of Ceylon.

DAIRY

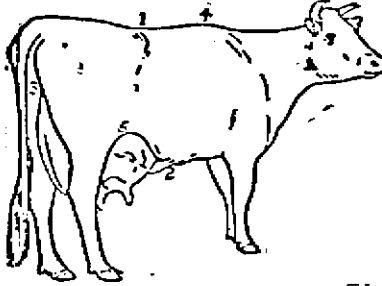

POINTS OF IDEAL DAIRY COW

Excellent Hints Given Which May Help Farmer in Selecting Animal for His Herd.

In selecting cows for dairy herds there are several essential points to consider.

The cow should have great stomach capacity; avoid a round bodied cow whose ribs are short, and a flat-ribbed cow. There should be ample room for the udder, which should extend well forward and not hang down. The Ideal Dairy Cow.

The dairy cow should be deep and wide from 1 to 2 as this gives her large capacity for rough feed. The back from 1 to 4 should be sharp, with little flesh, when she is in good condition. She should be well cut up behind so that the udder can extend well up, as at 3. Her flank should be well arched, as at 5, to provide room for a large udder.

Milk veins should be large and the farther they go the better. The udder should be loose and pliable, when empty—not fleshy.

The eyes should be large and bright and project well out from the face. This is a strong indication of the nerve force needed for strong digestion and large milk secretion.

Cost of a Cough.

A patient German statistician has calculated that a patient who coughs once every quarter of an hour for ten hours expends energy equivalent to two hundred and fifty units of heat, which may be translated as equivalent to the nourishment contained in three eggs or two glasses of milk. In normal respiration the air is expelled from the chest at the rate of four feet per second, whereas in violent coughing it may attain a velocity of three hundred feet. This waste of energy is especially important, because it occurs, for the most part, in persons whose assimilative functions are already working under difficulties; consequently the ingestion of the corresponding quantity of nourishment by no means compensates for the exertion. It follows that persistent cough is per se a cause of emaciation, though there are many other factors which tend in the same direction; hence the desirability of restraining cough within safe limits, especially when it is due to irritative reflexes, such as are excited by laryngitis and pharyngitis. From the Medical Critic and Globe.

Marriage.

George Ade said of it, "You'll regret it if you do and you'll regret it if you don't." Previously Socrates had said, somewhat to wit, "Young man, whether you do or not, you'll be sorry for it." The conservative nature is shy of it, unwilling to take a chance. The element of chance in it is what legitimates others. It has, however, wholly admirable aspects. The very useful and excellent sentiment of home is perhaps its best product. Summing up briefly the whole history of human experience, we feel moved to say of marriage, "It is well. Let it continue." (It continues.)

Fresh Air for Colds.

Do not make the mistake of withholding fresh air from one who has a cold. Well-ventilated rooms are necessary. Oxygen is essential.

When the cold is accompanied by a slight cough it is best to keep the child in bed, where the temperature is even and warm, with fresh air.

Rub the chest, neck and back with capsicum vaseline and plain vaseline, half and half. Be careful not to get the capsicum vaseline in the child's eyes. Camphorated oil and spirits of turpentine, equal parts of each, may be used instead of vaseline.

LACK OF SHELTER FOR COWS

Exposure to Cold Rains Causes Big Drop in Milk Production—Cleanliness is Important.

(Dr. C. H. ECKLES, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

The dairy cow often suffers the most from exposure to the weather before real winter has begun. After steady cold comes the cow is generally stalled. Exposure to cold rains is often more injurious to the animal than the colder but dry weather in winter.

The dairy cow is not like the fat steer, protected from cold by a layer of fat. As a result, bad weather causes a big drop in milk production. So long as the weather is dry it is just as well to leave the cow outside nights, but every cold rain should find her protected.

It is not necessary in the climate of Missouri to go to any great expense on most farms in order that the barn may be warm. The main thing is to have tight walls so there is no draft or wind, and a good roof. Care should be taken in arranging the stalls in the form of a platform of the right length and a gutter of sufficient depth to hold the manure. The cleanliness of the milk depends to a considerable extent upon having the barn built so the cow will keep herself clean.

TROUBLE WITH CALF SCOURS

Overfeeding, Sour Milk Pails and Irregularity in Feeding are Usually the Causes.

Probably the greatest difficulty with which the calf feeder has to contend is scours. Overfeeding, sour milk pails, cold water and irregularity in feeding are usually the causes, says a writer in Field. As soon as signs of scours are noticed it is recommended that the milk be reduced to one-half, and that a teaspoonful of dried blood be added to the milk fed. No dried blood that has not been thoroughly sterilized should be used. In severe cases of scours, the addition of one or two eggs with the dried blood has been found to be very effective. In severe cases, it is recommended that the calf be given one or two ounces of castor oil in the morning which is followed in about 12 hours by 15 drops of laudanum and a teaspoonful of dried blood.

Diabetic Troubles.

The dyspeptic has one great advantage over the diabetic. The stomach immediately manifests its displeasure at ill treatment—as most dyspeptics know. It sets up pains that call a temporary halt. But the overworked pancreas suffers in silence. It does not instantaneously warn its possessor to stop eating the things that signify destruction. Only in the reappearance of sugar and acid, and then of coma, does it voice its protest. Translated into practical terms, this means that the diabetic must exercise even greater force of character than the dyspeptic. —Karlton J. Hendrick, in Harper's Magazine.

PERSIANS FOND OF SHERBET

Much Time Is Devoted to Preparation of Beverage, of Which There Are Many Varieties.

The great beverage in Persia is sherbet, which is plentifully supplied and of which there are many varieties—from the bowl of water with a squeeze of lemon to the clear concentrated juice of any sort of fruit to which water is added to dilute it. The preparation of sherbet, which is done with greatest care, is a very important point in so thirsty a country as Persia, and one to which much time is devoted. It may be either expressed from the juice of fruit freshly gathered or from the preserved extract of pomegranates, cherries or lemons, mixed with sugar and submitted to a certain degree of heat to preserve it for winter consumption.

Another sherbet much drunk is called guzangoben; it is made from the honey of the tamarisk tree. This honey is not the work of the bee, but the product of a small insect or worm living in vast numbers under the leaves of the shrub. During the months of August and September the insect is collected and the honey is preserved. When used for sherbet it is mixed with vinegar and, although not so delicious as that made from fruit, it makes an excellent temperance beverage. Only among the rich and fashionable are glasses used; in all other cases sherbet is served in china bowls and drunk from deep wooden spoons carved in pearwood.

EDUCATION OF THE STREETS

Children With Poor Environments Stand Low in Higher Forms of Intelligence, Tests Show.

It is a common belief that the children of the poorer classes in large cities acquire a certain amount of valuable education by running the streets. Actual tests usually indicate, however, says the Journal of Heredity, that such children stand very low in all the higher forms of intelligence, and this might have been suspected from an examination of the environment in which they are brought up. Association with older people is one of the most important factors in a child's education; but in the poorer classes the dwellings are so small that a child must spend most of his waking hours outside, and nowhere does he come in close contact with many older persons of ability.

No matter how much one may admire the development of modern industrial society, he can hardly believe that it offers a full and rich environment in which a child may "unfold." If a child had inherited ability (and many of the children who roam the streets have not) it could hardly be called into full play by the stimulus of a modern city street—which, compared with the country, offers little for a child to do. Much has been said of the evils of child labor, but under modern city conditions it is conceivable that child idleness may sometimes be equally injurious.

Artists Who Are "Peculiar."

There are in this country a number of men who sacrifice beauty of color for peculiarity of color—to announce to the world their "individuality," that they are here, on the map of the earth, writes F. W. Ruckstuhl in Art World. They go either to the anemic and bloodless, or to the redhot and vulgar, or to the neutral and leaden, or to the shocking and capricious color—to create a notoriety bringing sensation. Because they know that the newspaper and magazine art writers—who need one sensation per week—will advertise their work and annex them as fruitful sources of mutual profit. Such vulgar color mongers the layman can ignore, for their fate is settled in advance. They begin to pass into oblivion as soon as they are born, like will o' the wisp. The very constitution of the human mind and soul insures that.

Prescriptions Put Up Right!

Mistakes in putting up doctor's prescriptions may result in death. How do such serious mistakes occur? They may occur through the hurried carelessness of the pharmacist or clerk who fills the prescription. They may occur because he misreads the Latin terms of the prescription. Often doctors write hurriedly under stress or their writing is naturally hard to read, but we are very particular. We check everything.

Niagara's Transmutations.

The Niagara that mingles itself in ice at the silent touch of the Frost, in its turn touches sand and coke and they become near diamonds; water and salt, and they become purity in drinking water; clay, and it gives forth a marvelous metal; a dead wire and it lights a city or drives a car; carbon and silica, and they are transformed into lubricants or inks. Directed by the magic of man's ingenuity, the restless energy of these raging waters is transmuted into hardness in steel, speed in manufacture, healing in antiseptics, whiteness in linen, cheapness in automobiles, durability in machinery.—National Geographic Magazine.

Well Covered.

Private Jimson was relating his experiences of the war. He said he was once taken prisoner, and the enemy stripped him of all his clothing.

"Did you feel the cold much?" asked a friend.

"No," replied Jimson, "not at all. You see, they carefully covered me with their rifles."—London Telegraph.

He—Let's play some kissing game. She—Why bother with the game?—Luck.

Our General Pershing has the physical and mental characteristics of a true product of our soil. He is as American as any Indian and might easily be taken for one. Looking on his tall, straight, athletic figure, his granite, imperturbable bronzed face with its prairie born, perpetual "sun grin," its clefts and hollows like hill-side erosions, and the stark, stolid atmosphere that invests him, one is irresistibly reminded of one of the great chiefs of the red men. Old Geronimo had much the same look, even in captivity—the air of immeasurable superiority to circumstance.—Chicago News.

Simple Enough.

"I met a man just now who said he didn't believe anything he read in newspapers."

"It would be easy to cure him of that."

"How?"

"By putting his name in print and referring to him as a prominent citizen."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

RAISE MORE PIGS. PLEA TO FARMERS

George F. Conings, Eau Claire, one of the best known Equity society leaders of the state, has issued an appeal to Wisconsin farmers to raise more pigs. He quotes from official sources to show that there is a world shortage of fat, and then declares that this situation can be most easily be relieved by growing pigs.

"Swine multiply faster than any other domestic animal," declared Mr. Conings today. "Can we not, shall we not as patriotic farmers, as a class, resolve individually and collectively, to carry thru the winter just as large a number of breeding animals as is possible?"

"With plenty of straw, warm dry sleeping quarters can be quickly improvised wherever needed. With clover hay or alfalfa, a little silage, the small unmarketable potatoes or other roots and a very little grain, brood sows can be wintered at a minimum of expense, and in the best of condition."

"Each female should as an average represent a family of five pigs next spring. These taken thru the summer largely on pasture, and fattened next fall, may possibly relieve a situation that words cannot describe."

"In sending out this appeal to brother farmers I believe it is to as patriotic a class as is in America. Let us not for a moment in these days of stress stop to argue as to right, but simply ask ourselves as to our duty."

"Having done our full duty we can justly and appropriately ask that we have full and free representation among the world's leaders when they sit down after the cataclysm is ended and try and federate the democracies of the world in such relations as to make democracy safe for all and peace an abiding fact in this world of ours."

FINAL SUMMONS FOR JAMES SANDS

After an illness of little more than a week, James Sands, one of the oldest and best known woodsmen in this part of Wisconsin, passed away in St. Mary's hospital early Saturday afternoon. He was forced by poor health to give up his labors in the woods a short time ago and he came to Rhinelander for rest and medical services. His condition showed no improvement and on the advice of friends he entered the hospital. His ailment was not thought to be critical and the news of his death was the source of keen regret to all who knew him.

James Sands was a native of Ireland and was born seventy-four years ago. At the age of twelve years he came to America, locating in New York City where for many years he was in the express service. Twenty-five years ago he came to Wisconsin and had since followed the woods life, making Rhinelander his headquarters. Regardless of his advanced age he kept in excellent physical condition and was known as the "youngest old man in the woods." He is said to leave relatives in New York.

"Jimmy" Sands was a friend to everyone and he will long be remembered for his generous and kind disposition. It didn't take much of a hard luck story to touch the heart of "Jimmy" and assistance was always forthcoming. He was a staunch member of the Eagles lodge and he fully lived up to the principles of this fraternity, "Love, Justice, Truth and Equality."

Rev. Father W. A. Beaudette conducted the funeral services which were held in St. Mary's church Tuesday morning. Members of Aerie 359 F. O. E. attended in a body.

NEWSY NOTES OF NEARBY TOWNS

Ladysmith—

Mrs. N. Whiteford returned from a two weeks visit to Quebec, Canada, where she visited her husband, who is a corporal in the medical corps of the Canadian army, now in camp in Quebec, expecting to go to France any day to join the British army. Mrs. Whiteford saw two ship loads of maimed and wounded soldiers back from the field and a city full of once stalwart men with faces cut or distorted, legs or arms missing, some blind, others black from gas, others staring, half stupefied still from shell shock, all terrible harrowing living witnesses of the horrors of war. Contingents are constantly leaving for France. All the returned soldiers say that they believe when America gets into the fight it will soon be over.

Ladysmith—

Rocking the boat, according to eye witnesses, Laura Schleau and Michael Stewart were drowned in Rice Lake Sunday night, when the boat which they occupied with a member of the Rice Lake militia company, capsized. The soldier is in a hospital totally exhausted as the result of a desperate effort to save the girls. He was rescued by spectators. The bodies were recovered within an hour after the accident.

Crandon—

Jas. A. Clark, of DeKalb, Ill., has been in Crandon this week looking over the city electric light plant with a view of purchasing same. If Mr. Clark decides to buy and the citizens are willing to sell, he will institute both day and night electric service and add many improvements.

Washburn—

Instruction in German in the schools of Washburn was abolished by the school board. It is planned to substitute instruction in either French or Spanish. Commenting on the board's action, The Washburn News says: "The school board of the city of Washburn has taken a step that they are to be congratulated upon. Many of the school boards throughout the United States have taken similar action, and it is only a question of time when the German language will be abolished in all of the public schools of the United States."

Gladstone—

Deep mystery surrounds the fate of John Robillard, a woodsman, who disappeared from Larson Bros. camp, near Hendricks Monday.

On Monday afternoon Robillard left the camp in an apparently unbalanced frame of mind. After unsuccessful efforts on the part of other men in the camp to induce him to spend the night in camp, he left Tuesday morning. His suitcase was found lying at the side of the track a quarter of a mile from the camp.

A large pool of blood covered the ground near the suitcase, in the center of the pool of blood was found an open knife. Tracks leading from a spot could be followed for only a short distance. The men at the camp were called out and a search was made into every bit of territory near the camp, but no trace of the missing man could be found.

New London—

Wednesday as members of Company M were lining up to receive their noon meal a man walked near the guard line and began to make remarks that were not at all pleasant to hear. All were "passed up" however, until the remark "now they'll proceed to feed the d—n hogs" was made. This was too much for the soldiers. They dropped plates and implements and started in pursuit of the intruder. He was located a few doors east of the mess tents and there made to apologize for his remarks. The men who heard the apology state that had it not been made the insult would have been "ducked" in the Embarras river. Later developments indicate that the man who is alleged to have made the remarks is Wm. Swinton, who at one time conducted a news stand in this city.

Ironwood—

Work on the new Gogebic National Bank building is progressing very satisfactorily at present. The front and roof are completed, the plumbing and heating plants are finished, as is also the concrete work. It is hoped to have the new building ready for occupancy by the first of next November. The only surprise in the outcome of the special election of last Monday to determine whether or not Ironwood should own and operate a municipal system of water works, is the seven votes which were cast against the proposition. The vote, while a light one, undoubtedly on account of the fact that all knew that there was no question of the outcome, was overwhelmingly in favor of the proposition.

ORDEALS LOSE THEIR SAVOR

Unpleasant Things to Which People Submit Because They Have Become an Acknowledged Custom.

There are some things in this world that do not bear analysis. When we pause to consider why we perform this act or submit to that ordeal, the answer is a kind of mental silence or a remonstrant, "Nevermore." And then we go ahead and perform the same act or submit to the same ordeal.

For instance, why was a photograph ever taken of a banquet? Every such photograph has looked about the same as all others since the original resemblance was established when the second was taken. A crowd of men in dress suits, or a gathering of men and women in evening attire, sit looking up at the camera. The expression on their faces is about as animated as the oysters that invariably lie expectant of their fate before the diners. In fact, no simple-faced child ever searched as intently for "the little bird" as the photographed diner sits in awe of the lightning and thunder of the camera man's flash-bags.

Of course, the flashlight photograph of a formal dinner may have its uses in the home. It should prove as enjoyable as a puzzle-picture to the young child who sets out to find "papa" among the startled monotony of upturned faces and dress suits. If the prices of food go up any more, it may become a pleasant reminder that once upon a time we had a square meal. But it is a silly ordeal for the diner, just the same. However, we suppose that we shall continue to be photographed as we dine on state occasions, and if anybody is in the way we probably shall tilt our head a bit so as to get into the picture.

LET YOUR WORK BE PERFECT

Genius and Chance May Not Always Come to All, but Fidelity Will Win in the End.

The common mistake of young people is that they count too much upon genius and chance. They have heard that Napoleon overran Italy at twenty-seven, and William Pitt was prime minister at twenty-four years of age, or they have fallen into the habit of waiting for something to turn up. But the greatest geniuses in art, in literature, in science, in war and statesmanship have been men of indomitable industry; and, as for chance, the least likely thing to turn up in life is the lost opportunity of youth. The seed of future greatness is sown in darkness. The young man who is destined to win the world's applause is hidden now in silent preparation. He knows that if he understands his subject better than anybody else, or if he can do a certain kind of work better than anybody else, there can be no doubt at all about the ultimate recognition of his superiority. There is no element of chance in a calculation of that sort. The critics, when they conspire to that end, may occasionally puff a nobody into a fleeting, fictitious celebrity, but will strive in vain to write down the man who comes before the public with something really well done. If the critics carried the fate of authors and artists in their hands they would have crushed Byron and Keats, Wordsworth and Browning, Rossetti and Millet. If the workman is his own critic, if he has an eye to his own faults, if he compares his work with his ideal rather than with the poor performance of his inferiors, there is no other critic of whom he need be afraid. See that your work is well done.—Exchange.

Holy Roman Empire and Germany.

The holy Roman empire, which, in the eighteenth century, Voltaire said, was "neither holy, nor Roman, nor an empire," is usually dated from the coronation of Charlemagne at Rome by Pope Leo III in 800, or, more technically, from the revival of this empire by Otto the Great, 962. In theory, it was a continuation of the western empire, overthrown by the invasions of the barbarians in 476, and Charlemagne and his immediate successors thought of themselves as successors of Augustus, Trajan, and Marcus Aurelius, and were crowned as Roman emperors. The disruption of the Frankish empire followed the deposition of Charles the Fat in 857, and, although a few princes held the imperial title in the interim, it remained for Otto the Great, crowned emperor of the Romans by Pope John XII, to inaugurate the medieval "Roman empire" of the German nation.

Warts of Language.

Ephraim Jones was charged with stealing a dozen and a half jars of peach jelly from Mrs. Watson's cellar. He stood in humble silence while the arresting officer and the judge discussed the demerits of the case.

"He did it, all right, your honor," said the policeman. "I was watching him when his head peeped through the door. His arms were filled with jars."

"Yes," continued the judge. "From all I can understand, this prisoner deliberately broke into that cellar, waited until he thought the coast was clear and then grabbed on as much as he

Ingenious Bridge Building.

In constructing a series of small bridges over the streams which intersect many of the roads of Sumatra a rather unusual course was followed. The builders used timber stringers and made abutments of piles of burlap bags filled with cement and sand. Shortly after the bags had been put in place heavy, soaking rains converted the whole into a mass of solid concrete.

Dodging a Twenty Hour Day.

"Aren't you going home?" inquired Mr. Dolan.

"Not this day nor tomorrow," replied Mr. Rafferty. "I'm not going to work more than eight hours a day, and the only way I can be true to my principles is to stay away from home, where they're taking down the stove and shaking rugs."—Washington Star.

Wanted the Usual Reward.

Ethel had been singing songs in a kindergarten entertainment, and after each rendition she had received hearty applause. The next evening her mother had company, and she asked Ethel if she would not sing one of her songs for the guest. Ethel complied with the request, and when she had finished the woman thanked her and complimented her on her voice. But Ethel was unsatisfied. "If you likes it," she complained, "why don't you clap?"

Not All Varieties Edible.

"Some people who know say that there are many cheap and nutritious foods which are neglected. For example, there is nutrition in all kinds of nuts."

"But we can't eat all kinds of nuts, my dear. Even to reduce the high cost of living, we can't be cannibals."

Thinking.

Thinking is quite easy when you know how. It is true that few of us do it. Most of us allow our minds to dribble, to meander aimlessly about along lines of least resistance, like water that has trickled over a Mississippi levee and gone here and there about the flats, getting muddier and muddier until it soaks into the lush earth or is evaporated into the thin air. That is what most of us call thinking. The mind that works that way gets nowhere; it never accomplishes anything; its owner is merely flotsam on the stream of life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Minerva's Bird.

The Greeks made the owl the emblem of wisdom. Shakespeare makes the witches add the wing of an owl to their caldron of deadly potion, and "It was the owl that shrieked, the fatal bellman." For centuries the owl was accused of such evil practices as luring hunters into dangerous swamps and causing the bride to commit suicide just 24 hours before the time set for the wedding. Napoleon exhorted his soldiers to sleepers vigilance with the command: "Sleep with the owls and get up with the larks."

Italian canners are now utilizing the skins and seeds of tomatoes, the former for stock food and the latter for oil, in its crude form for soap and illumination, and when refined for table use.

The term "stock," as an instrument of punishment, is applied in the authorized version of the Bible to two different articles, one of which answers rather to the pillory. The other answers to the stocks, the feet alone being confined in it.

WHAT IS IT THAT IS CAUSING ALL THAT TROUBLE WITH YOUR EYES?

Are the eye muscles following those laws laid down for them by nature?

Are they working in harmony and without strain?

Are your eye nerves being exhausted and irritated by the unnatural demands made upon them by some form of eye strain that you have?
